

It is wrong for a minority group to control a "public" resource like access to the internet has become. It makes no sense for every ISP to have to spend the capital and time to run cable to everyone's home in order to offer competing service. LECs need to allow access to anyone who wishes to purchase it at a fair and reasonable market-dictated price. Small businesses (independent ISPs) would be put in an unfair position, and basically forced out of business if the LECs are allowed to withhold access.
